HISTORY

Welcome to the Weiberwirtschaft!

It is said that a good hostess is the soul of any good guesthouse. And if you take two of them, you get concentrated girl power and a modern restaurant managed with passion and hospitality, inviting guests to enjoy well-being and good food here from early till late. Whether after a shopping trip or for a cosy after-work gathering - experienced restaurateurs Dana and Sonja always know how to pamper and captivate their guests. And who wouldn't be won over by some of their tasty treats under the historic arches of the old castle walls at the Isartor gate?

The Weiberwirtschaft is both traditional yet more modern than you would expect and is located opposite the Munich Karl Valentin Museum im Tal where the clocks go backwards. This new culinary refuge is therefore also a bit different to anywhere else. Here the people of Munich can enjoy their favourite "Schnitt", a "one for the road" beer, along with the best gins, Bavarian specialities and simple curry sausages – a place where both the sophisticated snob (Striezi) and the common next door neighbour (Hundling) will feel at home. We would even dare to say that Karl Valentin himself would have loved the Weiberwirtschaft. Based on his motto of 'Today is the good old times of tomorrow', there is no better time than right now to celebrate together.

Historic Location - "Das Tal"

The history of Munich's popular street „Tal" is around 500 years old. Known as the 'gourmet mile' ever since, it provided visiting tradespeople with a place to stop off and enjoy some food as far back as the Middle Ages back when the street was still a suburb within the city walls. Here in the spot where wagoners, merchants on horseback, town clerks and councilmen felt at home, there is also plenty of reason to linger. Tal is popular with tourists and locals alike thanks to its numerous shopping facilities and historic buildings - and the Bavarian inn-keeping tradition has certainly a great part to play in this.
